

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system for automatic object classification including means for applying a plurality of binary rules to an object, where any of the binary rules is operative to classify the object to one of a pair of classes, and means for determining to which of the classes the object is classified the greatest number of times subsequent to the application of the binary rules.